

INVESTIGATION IS BEING MADE INTO KENOSHA TRAGEDY

Blame Placed on Driver;
Train Going Too Fast,
Inquiry Indicates

EYE-WITNESS SOUGHT

Announcement that inquiry indicates that the train was going at a speed greater than allowed by state law at such crossings is the latest development in the investigation which is being launched into the North Shore Interurban wreck at Kenosha in which 11 were killed and over 100 injured at 11 o'clock Sunday night. Blame for the tragedy is placed upon the reckless driving of Norman Shinnars, 21, Milwaukee, who, in his attempt to beat a train to a crossing, sent a speeding electric passenger train loaded with Sunday excursionists crashing into the wreckage of an electric freight train. Coroner A. H. Schmidt is endeavoring to find the only eye-witness to the disaster besides William D. Hall, motorman of the train, who is near death. Formal inquiry opens today.

Auto Tossed Against Freight

Shinnars, who was speeding, according to witnesses, swung his car around another automobile which was waiting at the crossing for the train to pass. The passenger tossed the automobile against a long electric freight train that was passing the Washington road crossing in the northwestern part of the city. The 16-car freight buckled, its cars striking the passenger. Shinnars, together with 10 train passengers, was killed outright and his automobile was literally ground to pieces. It was in the two front coaches, which were badly wrecked, that most of the dead were found. Freight cars were flaming and doctors, nurses, ambulance drivers, and wrecking crews toiled in the glare. When the blaze began to whip round the passenger coaches, a fire alarm was turned in due to fear of the peril of cremation. The clank of fire engines, and the cries of those who were dying and seriously injured added to the dreadfulness of the scene.

Victims Rushed to Hospital

With the aid of ambulances, automobiles, trucks, and delivery conveyances 35 victims were removed to St. Catherine's hospital and 35 more to the Kenosha hospital, while many were taken to homes, road houses, and filling stations.

For a few minutes following the horrible crash, silence reigned and then there came forth outbursts of (Continued on page 5)

Two sailor gobs on a week's vacation furnish the main part of the fun in "Marriage by Mail," the next spoken drama by the J. B. Rotnour Players at the Crystal theatre Tuesday night.

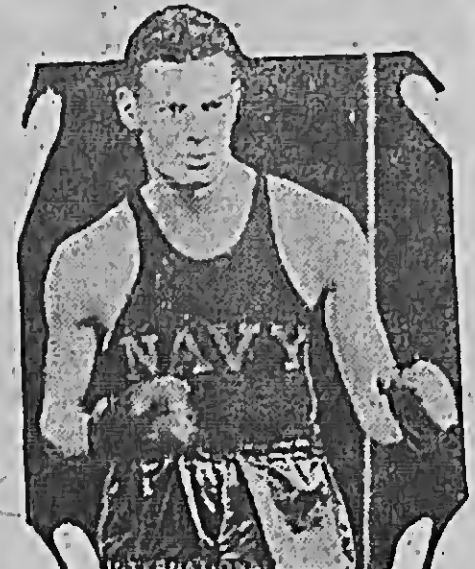

"It is to laugh," says J. B., who advises all patrons of the Crystal to leave dull care behind next Tuesday night. "Marriage by Mail," a sparkling, rapid fire comedy, is one of the very latest releases to repertoire companies and Mr. Rotnour is using it by special permission.

LONG DELAYED MAIL ARRIVES

An instance of long delayed transmission of mail was revealed here Thursday when a card post marked Chicago, August 2, 1929, arrived at the local office. The card, which was addressed to Sotter's Resort, had been delayed nearly seven months in its 56 mile journey from the Windy City.

Miss Eleanor Meyer spent the week-end at her home in Lexington, Illinois.

LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER HONORED; GETS APPOINTMENT

Mrs. Richey To Be Mgr.
I. S. N. U. Cafeteria
This Summer

TO REPORT FOR DUTY JUNE 14

Showing supremacy in the field of home economics, of which subject she is instructor in the Antioch Township High School, Mrs. Ruby Richey recently received word that she has been appointed manager of the cafeteria at Illinois State Normal university, Normal, Illinois, for the coming summer. The local teacher was informed of the designation by Dean H. H. Schroeder, who has been acting president since the death of Dr. Feimley.

I. S. N. U. Is Her Alma Mater

Since Mrs. Richey is an alumna of this university, she has reason to accept this position with great pleasure. She took her Bachelor of Education degree from there in 1926 and since that time has directed the cafeteria as well as taught home economics in the local high school.

Although she does not have to report for duty until June 14, Mrs. Richey states that she is planning to spend a week-end on the university campus soon in order to collect data which will aid her in outlining her work for the summer.

She had planned to return to New York City this summer to continue her course at Columbia, but owing to this unusual appointment, she feels that this experience she will gain from this position will be more valuable than a summer spent at the eastern university. The enrollment at Illinois State Normal university is about 2,500.

OPENS CAMPAIGN

COL. A. V. SMITH

Col. A. V. Smith formally opened his campaign for congress Tuesday night in Waukegan with a statement of his platform which stirred an audience of over a thousand persons who packed the armory in spite of the downpour of rain.

The State's Attorney, pledged support to the farmer, the ex-serviceman, the laborer and the middle western manufacturer in his 40-minute speech.

Other speakers were drawn from among the county organizations, from Chicago and from Evanston. Fourteen recognized political, labor, and fraternal leaders praised the state's attorney's record and endorsed his candidacy.

HARRY PEETZKE, ANTIOCH HEAVY, RETURNS TO RING

'Sensation' to Swap Punches
With Don Farmer at Palace Show

MUSCARILLO IN WINDUP

Considerable local interest is centering around Dick Maccek's amateur boxing show at the Palace Friday night through the fact that Harry Peetzke, Antioch's heavyweight sensation, will climb through the ropes to face Don Farmer, the "rubber" man from Kenosha, in the fourth preliminary bout.

Peetzke's return to the ring is by popular request. When Farmer faces this 200 pounds of brawn and static cunning he is going to find he has a real job on his hands, according to handlers of Peetzke who claim their protegee has been in intensive training for weeks in preparation for the bout that means either his rise in the pugilistic world or his passing into static oblivion.

Trainer Harold Ellis states that Harry is training conscientiously and that he is staking everything on getting a favorable verdict over the Kenosha brawler Friday night. Harry has the "now or never" feeling in his bosom, and those who knew the local "sensation" say that if this Farmer person happens to stop one of Peetzke's haymakers—well, it will be just too bad.

Dick Folbrich will be Peetzke's chief second.

Muscarillo in Windup

One of the best windup bouts of the season is expected to thrill the fans when Tony Muscarillo trades punches with Ernie Kratochvil at 135 pounds. Both lads were returned victors last Friday night. Muscarillo, Chicago's Italian flash trimmed Howard Craft to a frazzle, and Ernie won over Chuck DeFranco. This Tony boy is plenty tough, and his decisive victory over Craft in his first appearance in the local ring brands him as a comer in the ranks of the lightweights. He will have a worthy foe in Kratochvil and the windup ought to be one of the best seen here in many months.

New Fighting Faces Seen

Among the new-comers to the local ring Friday night will be seen L. Kotnic, Rachee 155 pounder, who is said to pack a mean wallop in either mit, matched against Gus Brandt, Chicago, in the semi-windup.

Johnnie Hughes returns Friday night to meet Danne Adams, Chicago, another stranger in these parts, but with a rep that hints of trouble ahead for Johnnie. Hughes won a hard-fought struggle over Frank Russo last week, but it took the Kenosha boy four rounds to swing the verdict. Russo appears this Friday with Howard Craft in the third preliminary.

Eddie Howarth, Chicago, comes to Antioch for the first time tomorrow night to trade wallops with Joe Roberts, Kenosha, and Laddie Miller, another newcomer, battles Paul Liberty in the opener.

Friday's Fight Results

Johnnie Hughes beat Frank Russo in four rounds.

Eddie Garlow won over Jimmy Simmons in three rounds.

John Lanneto won three-round decision over Peto Oiva.

Chuck Brant lost to Buddy Meyers in three rounds.

Paul Harris dropped a hard fought battle to Carl Ogrin.

Tony Muscarillo declared winner over Howard Craft.

Windup

Ernie Kratochvil out-punched Chuck DeFranco in three rounds.

Robert Clithan, son of Mrs. Myrtle Stowe, formerly of Antioch and now of Waukegan, was operated upon for appendicitis at St. Therese's hospital.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Flying Squirrels

Flying squirrels do not really fly. But aided by folds of skin along each side of the body they jump and glide as much as sixty feet at a time. However, their flight is always in a downward direction. The American species is about seven inches long, exclusive of the tail.

Challenges Zion!

WILLIAM C. PETTY

Candidate for the Republican nomination for county superintendent of schools of Lake county, who has stated publicly he will not seek the aid of Wilbur Glen Voliva and his organized Zionites in the forthcoming primaries.

Mr. Petty rapped Voliva's flat earth idea at a meeting here Monday night. The candidate must be credited with having courage of his convictions. He goes on record as one of the first candidates for elective office to challenge the Zion leader's fast-fading political power.

ANTIOCH MERCHANTS ORGANIZE; WILL PLAN TRADE EXPANSION

W. H. Regan Heads Group;
VanPatten, Hachmeister,
Also Officers

Stressing the idea of a broader and more complete service in all lines of retail merchandising, Antioch independent merchants, recently organized under the name "Antioch Independent Retail Merchants' association," are planning a trade expansion program to be carried out in a bigger way than ever before attempted, with a view to acquainting the entire region with the advantages of making Antioch shopping headquarters.

Headling the group as president is Wm. H. Regan, of the Wisconsin Butter store; Louis Van Patten of the Williams Bros. department store, is vice-president, and O. E. Hachmeister, proprietor of the Quality Market, is secretary and treasurer.

"As a compact shopping center, Antioch has the world to win," a prominent local business man said today. "With but a very few exceptions all ordinary family or farm needs may be purchased right here, within a single block. The prices are right, and every merchant is ready and willing to stand behind all purchases made. We are going to tell the world about the quality and price of Antioch's merchandise, and about courteous service, too."

An extensive advertising program is being planned.

State Highway Police Tell Drivers of County To Get Their Licenses

State highway policemen throughout Lake county are busy warning motorists that they must apply for their 1930 auto licenses at once.

While no arrests are usually made at the time of the first round, the cops have threatened rougher treatment if it becomes necessary for them to make a second drive. They don't let anyone know that they are going to visit a city until they arrive and then it is too late.

Birth Announcements

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hobbs, of Chicago, on February 13. Mrs. Hobbs, who used to live in Antioch, was formerly Miss Cora Drom.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Hunter are the proud parents of a daughter born at a Waukegan hospital Tuesday, Feb. 26.

Mrs. John C. Nixon received word from her son, Lester, and Joe Ewers that they arrived in Los Angeles Saturday. They made the trip in 10 days, having stopped off at the larger cities enroute.

Miss Marlen Spangard has resigned her position as telephone operator. W. O. Winch recently donated a piano to the Channel lake school.

Charles (Chuck) Wallace, small son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Wallace, is improving rapidly after several days severe illness.

John C. Nixon has accepted a position as sales force promoter for a Chicago firm.

A new smokestack, which belongs to the Chain O' Lakes laundry, adorns Antioch's skyline. Operation of the new business will begin about April 1, according to an announcement made here today.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Ziegler spent Saturday in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lucas and daughter spent Sunday at the home of his mother, Mrs. Fred Loof, Grass Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Shunnesson, Jr., arrived in Antioch Friday after spending several weeks in California and other western states.

Former Antioch Resident Dies in Waukegan Hospital

Mrs. Ed. Little, 78, died at the St. Therese hospital, Waukegan, Wednesday following an extended illness which was due to her advanced age and injuries received in a fall down stairs several weeks ago.

The deceased was born in Spring Grove, Ill. She had been making her home with her daughter, Mrs. Frank Shepherd. Besides the daughter, she is survived by two sons, William and Henry of Evanston. Her husband, a civil war veteran, died 21 years ago.

Funeral services were held from the Gurnee Community church Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Case were Chicago visitors Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moore and children motored to Waukegan Saturday afternoon.

No Place in Schools for Flat Earth Idea, Candidate Avers

DEEMS ZION INDEPENDENT
VOTE FAR MORE DESIRABLE

By H. B. Gaston

William C. Petty, supervising principal of the Antioch schools, is not counting on the Zionist vote as an aid in his campaign for the Republican nomination for county superintendent of schools. It was announced Monday night to a group of the local candidate's backers.

In answer to the inquiry as to whether or not he would seek the support of Wilbur Glen Voliva, Mr. Petty declared he would make no effort to secure the okay of the Zionist leader. "You see, I still believe the earth is round," he said.

"It is my conviction that a man who professes to believe the earth is flat should not be placed in a position to dictate the educational policies of Lake county schools," Mr. Petty declared.

"This Pancake World"

Voliva's alleged belief that the earth is flat, like a pancake, has provoked mirth throughout the land and has been the means of obtaining columns of publicity for the general over-seer and his religious cult.

Voliva, who evidently knows more about politics than he does about geography, is the absolute boss of Zion, and he has been regarded as a power in politics through his ability to back candidates of his choice with a 100 per cent vote of his followers.

The Zionist "machine" functions not only in local politics, but its ramifications have extended into county and district affairs and even reaches to the state administration, as evidenced by the fact that two weeks ago the over-seer's garage and auto sales delivered to the Illinois state police fifty new Ford cars.

How Have the Mighty Fallen!

It is therefore, quite unusual for a candidate to decline to seek the support of Voliva, who for years has been regarded as a major political aid by those who aspire to elective office.

But to those who know Mr. Petty, the candidate's attitude does not seem at all out of place nor far-fetched. It is just characteristic of the man—his stand is fearless, emphatic, and is one that will not lead to any "entangling alliances" with Mr. Voliva. In the event of his success at the polls. In other words, Mr. Petty will "have no axe to grind" in Zion.

Who Wants Zionist Vote?

It remains, therefore, for the g. o. to bestow his favor upon the candidacy of T. A. Simpson. Mr. Petty's Republican opponent, now serving his twenty-fourth year as county school head, or to swing the Zion support to the ranks of the Democrats and espouse the cause of Mrs. Frances Moody, Highland Park candidate, who has been elected to the office of county superintendent of schools, six consecutive times, and who is now seeking preferment at the hands of Lake county voters to have that honor bestowed upon him a seventh time.

Voliva's third alternative is to remain out of the fight altogether, but silence from the Zion quarter is a probability too remote to merit serious consideration.

Christian Fiddler and sister, Miss Ida Fiddler, have purchased a residence at Salem and expect to move there soon.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Somerville were in Chicago on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Sablin left Friday for a few days visit at the Merrill Sablin home, Springfield.

Mrs. A. W. Bock and Mrs. E. E. Brook visited in Burlington Thursday.

Miss Marie Marvel of Waukegan visited Antioch friends Monday evening.

Mrs. A. D. Johnson and Miss Ruth Cribb spent Thursday in Waukegan.

WHAT MAKES A GOOD BUSINESS TOWN

There is not a man or woman in Antioch who does not appreciate the importance of Antioch being a good business town. Local business conditions serve as our best barometer of local prosperity. Certainly we all desire to be prosperous. To achieve this prosperity it is essential that our neighbors prosper likewise. Practically every person in Antioch is dependent on the other citizens of this community for his individual prosperity. Therefore any movement toward a greater prosperity must be a group movement—a co-operative movement. Our merchants should co-operate in an endeavor to give ever better values and better service, and our fellow citizens should reciprocate with their full support. As a business in Antioch prospers, so does the entire community prosper, for what is good for business is good for the community. Therefore it must be the aim of every resident to see that Antioch not only achieves the reputation of being a good business town, but that it maintains this reputation.

The twelve essential points are the fundamental factors that determine the status of Antioch as a business town. Too great an emphasis cannot be placed upon point number one—"The citizens spend their money at home." Unless our citizens do spend our money at home, they are handicapping the possibility of Antioch strengthening its position as a business town.

A study of community development emphasizes the fact that a good business town is not created by accident, but rather by a carefully planned program supported by the residents of the community. The Community Development Campaign discusses the question of What Makes a Good Business Town in this issue of The Antioch News, and presents in a clear and concise form the essential factors. After you have what is there written, you can judge for yourself where Antioch stands in this respect.

THE MAGIC WORD

There is a magic word in the English language; it thrills; it drives men on day by day; it is the keynote of the ambition of him who burns the midnight oil; it is pounding on the mind of him who strives to pack a week's work into the space of a few hours; it tempts men to risk the salvation of their souls; it is responsible for much of the suffering with which the old world has become all too familiar. This is the word that is on the lips of men and women everywhere—of the man who goes out into the world to struggle, of the woman who waits in the home, of the youth who looks into the future with hope, of the old man whose race is nearly run, of the younger one who is in the thick of the fight. The word is success.

We are thrilled by it if we still have hope; it settles down like darkest doom when hope is gone. What is success? Judging by the activities of most persons one might be led to believe that it is the accumulation of money, the winning of fame, or the gaining of position. These may come with it, but they are not what determine whether or not one has gained it. Success itself is never responsible for mis-spent lives; it is never responsible for sufferings with which we are familiar.

The evil associated with the word is the result of a misinterpretation of its meaning. The pursuit of success is the beginning of much that cannot be classed as good. Centuries ago a wise man said, "The love of money is the root of all evil," and so it is today. What evil there is because men love money! And that evil is magnified by the common belief that success must be measured by the dollar standard.

Men sacrifice the best part of their lives in the pursuit of money, believing that they must have it or be reckoned as a failure. In the eyes of the world; they believe that the more gold they accumulate the greater is the degree of their success. Everywhere we see evidences of this belief; we see it in lives of those around us who think first of material possessions; we see it in the fathers who sacrifice their family relations for the sake of business; we see it in those who break down their physical strength to build up a large bank account; we see it in the lives of those who have caused others to suffer that they might add to their ill gotten gains. Magazine articles emphasize the man, who, with five dollars and an idea, has been able to build up a million dollar business; the poor boy who became immensely wealthy; and the person who has overcome difficulties and has accumulated a fortune in spite of his handicaps. Advertisements are constantly flaunted before us, holding out the glorious promises of gratifying success if one but follow the simple recipe that cannot fail to fill our pockets with gold. Do this and so and success shall come to you; you shall have money—thus are people day by day led to believe more and more in the dollar standard of measurement.

Money one must have, for we are living in a material-of-fact, material world which demands that we must pay with gold for the very essentials by which we live. He is very miserable indeed, who does not learn to practice thrift, who fares old age a pauper in purse, but the most miserable of all is he who has become a pauper to the better things of life while he has given his attention exclusively to the giving of wealth.

It is essential that we make a living, but it is even more essential that we live a life filled with usefulness and the things that are worth while.

Henry Ford has won success but while he attained that goal he has at the same time accumulated a vast fortune. Ford has succeeded because he chose to fill a place in the industrial world that was worth occupying. The fortune he accumulated has been incidental. In his line of activity it was sure to come if he did his best, but for all that, the measures of his success is in the service rendered the thousands of workmen who have been furnished employment and the value of the output of the industrial activity to the world and not the amount of money accumulated.

Some occupations are better paid than others. In these one gains material possessions more rapidly than in those lines of work which are less profitable from a material standpoint. Some have ability to follow the so-called more profitable highways of achievement, while others have talent for the vocations which pay the highest dividends in satisfaction.

What then is success? It is doing a work worth doing and performing the task to the best of one's ability. Then though one may gain vast possessions or be constantly confronted with serious problems of providing a living for self and family, success has become reality. The test is not of gold, but the rarer gem of making the most of life in an occupation equal to the capability of the individual.

If the Truth Was Always Told

Old Eagle Eye Says--

Thrills de luxe even for gray beards are in store for fans at the Antioch Palace Friday night, according to ruminate chuckles which have been circulating around town for the last week. At that time, 200 pound man-killing Harry will expend ninety-nine and nine-tenths per cent of his illimitable, iridescent vitality without fear or fellow feeling and with every nerve fastened to an unnatural tension. Isn't the line—"You rah rah Peetzke"—all-apter on the tip of your tongue?

For coals, galoshes, red dunnels, and what have you were discarded last week to welcome the first promise of spring that we have had this year. There were many signs of spring in Antioch, but the most prominent of all was the assembling of local bachelors on the street corners to watch for the new arrivals on the matrimonial market.

The other day while Old Eagle Eye was waiting at the package window in the post office a well dressed young woman whom most of you know came in and hastily began to manipulate the combination of box number—well, that doesn't make any difference. She took out two letters and after giving one of them a perfunctory glance she blithely dropped it into the waste paper basket; the other was probably written in strange hand writing, judging from the bewildered look on the girl's face, but nevertheless she must read it. After cutting the envelope with a key she removed the paper on which the message was written. She had read only a few lines when a tender glow came over her countenance. Well to make a long story short, she probably heard from Jim Jones or Tom Brown.

The local places of business which were closed on account of Washington's birthday were the First National Bake everything that's possible in the top of the oven rather than in the bottom. As heat invariably rises, the top of the oven is the hottest. This suggestion holds for a majority of the lighter foods.

An even cooked virtual has a much better flavor than one cooked on the top of the stove. This holds true for bacon and eggs as well as for the little pig sausages.

Water rather than milk makes a much lighter and more tender omelet. Milk makes a tough omelet.

When preparing omelets beat egg yolks and whites separately and a sure sign of their being "done" is the curling of the omelet at the edges.

Oh, prunes! Children say it and some children eat them. More of them, however, refuse to touch them despite or perhaps because of their healthful qualities. Try cooking them in the oven and watch their delicious odors tempt the little ones. Just cover the prunes or apricots with about two cups of water and one cup of sugar.

A good rule to follow when preparing baking powder biscuits is to use two teaspoons of baking powder to one cup of flour. Always use level measurements.

Women who have done little cooking will welcome this hint: The less dough is handled the more fluffy and lighter it will be.

When making cheese biscuits, four tablespoons of grated cheese may take the place of shortening. No other shortening is required and the resultant is particularly delicious.

Hints For Homemakers

By Jane Rogers

ESPECIALLY during the winter, vegetables are likely to arrive in the kitchen a long time after they have been picked. A little sugar added to the water while boiling will help to restore the natural sweetness they have lost.

An easy way to shell pecans is to pour boiling water over the nuts, and let them stand for about a half hour. Then, when the shells are cracked, the nut meats can be removed with no trouble at all.

Correct measurements are essential for successful cookery. Read recipes carefully. Remember that one cup of chopped nut meats, for instance, and one cup of nuts, chopped, are two different quantities. Just as are one cup of whipped cream, and one cup of cream, whipped.

Sally Ann's

—at her home

Where do you think Sally Ann went Monday night when it thundered and lightened so—well, she went to Fairyland. Some little fairy came and took her away, away up into the clouds. And how do you suppose she got there? In a great big umbrella that was turned up side down. Sally Ann shut her eyes tight as she sailed higher and higher into the dark blue sky.

"The sky really is a wonderful place," she thought to herself as she hugged the little fairy who was guiding the umbrella. Such a beautiful airy umbrella it was as it curved down to the hills on every side. As it touched the highest point in the sky Sally Ann could not help thinking what a wonderful story she would have to tell her little friends the next day—if she got back home all safe and sound.

The fairy, whose name was Pip, told Sally Ann that the umbrella in which they were riding was even prettier than the one she used on Sundays. It was a strong umbrella and all the four winds were under it, and Pip and Sally Ann became nothing more than specks in the air. Oh, nothing at all in the pretty blue bumbushoot that carried them sailing, sailing into the air, and oh, my, how it did thunder and thunder; and poor little Sally Ann was as scared as could be.

After the two of them had travelled for hours and hours, Sally Ann began to get rather tired of the roaring, roaring, and roaring, so she told Pip she wanted to go home to her mamma and papa. "Do you think we'll ever get home?" said Sally Ann to her little fairy friend. "I don't know, little girl," said Pip. "I'm getting pretty tired hanging on to this handle, but I'll try to hang on until we reach your home away down on the earth." This comforted Sally Ann.

Before so very long they arrived at Sally Ann's home all safe and sound. Sally Ann and Pip kissed each other goodbye and then Pip started on her long journey home, perhaps never again to see little Sally Ann.

Just as Sally Ann had gotten into her little bed, she heard her mamma

Coffee

Until the recent fumble on the stock market folks believed, quite blithely that "it takes money to make money." That theory exploded there is still one fundamental to cling to—"it takes a good brand of coffee to make good coffee." No magician, not even so skilful a cook as Mrs. L. B. Grice, Lake street, can produce golden brown java, like that you've dreamed about without the aid of excellent coffee. And it is rather comforting to know that a good brand is not necessarily the most expensive kind on the market.

Agreed that the good brand is not say "it's time to get up, sweetheart!" And what do you think Sally Ann just had a dream, and when she tried to tell her little friends about it when they came over to her house she couldn't remember a single thing about her trip to this far, far away land called Fairyland. Did you ever have an experience like that, little boys and girls. If you haven't, maybe you will tonight.

prohibitive, there's still many a slip between the coffee pot and the lip, according to Mrs. Grice. The primal prerequisite of good coffee is a clean coffee pot made so by daily washing and a bath in soda water at least once a week. This wrinkle of Mrs. Grice's preaching collapses the principle of those inveterate coffee drinkers who never wash the pot and who daily add fresh water to the old grounds. In this class too are the coffee makers who never take the pot off the stove, making the beverage a drink more potent than the suicidal cup of hemlock.

But Mrs. Grice is not so dictatorial that she will not let the coffee drinker follow his bent in regard to strong and weak coffee. A heaping table-spoon full for those who wish the coffee strong and a little longer cooking for added zest. If coffee is started with cold water, naturally the cooking period is longer than the 3 to 5 minutes required when boiling water is used.

Tepid, muddy coffee has caused as many matrimonial wrecks as has soggy unsightly biscuits. The difference between the biscuit offense and the coffee breach is that less people are aware of making poor coffee and consequently the weakness is exploited and perhaps unwittingly upon the guest who would be a friend.

TOWNSHIP CONTEST

Bristol Community hall was packed to the doors Thursday night as more than 450 patrons attended the township P. T. A. dramatic and musical contest between talent from Bristol, South Bristol, Maple Ridge, Woodworth, and Hazel Dell schools, which competed for the honor of taking part in the Kenosha county finals, which were held Monday night again in Bristol. Bristol P. T. A. won out by 90 points Thursday night and also won Saturday night in Wilmet where the elimination contest for the western group of which Bristol was one, was held. Three from this contest and two from the Somers group were the contestants, making the five best from the eight townships in the county which competed Monday evening.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Mind" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, February 23.

The Golden Text was, "Who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct him? But we have the mind of Christ" (1 Cor. 2:16).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "If there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any bowels and mercies, fulfill ye my joy, that ye be like-minded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind" (Phil. 2:1, 2).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "When will the ages understand the Ego, and realize only one God, one Mind or Intelligence?" (p. 204).

The attendance at Sunday school last Sunday was another record breaker. There were 104 present.

The average attendance for the month of February was 99 plus, while the average for January was 82. There are still others about us who should be enrolled in some of our classes. Perhaps your invitation would bring them.

The officers and teachers of the Sunday school met at the parsonage on Monday night. Various items relative to the work of our school were profitably discussed. Miss Marie Marvel, our director of Religious Education in Lake and McHenry counties, met with us. On next Sunday some of our teachers are visiting the Sunday school at the First Methodist church at Wilmett. Substitute teachers will take their places next Sunday.

CHANNEL LAKE COUNTRY CLUB NEWS

— What Members of Popular Organization Are Doing —

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Channel Lake Country club Charles W. Ladd was elected a director to fill a vacancy on the board.

Several of our members have received very interesting post cards from Mrs. Maude Kress, whose family are sojourning in New Zealand. It is rumored that Mildred Kress is engaged to an Australian.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Stevens (Eloise Kress) are reported to be spending the remainder of the winter in Florida. Mr. Stevens has given up his position in Gary, Indiana, where they went to live following their wedding in October; and upon their return from Florida, they hope to be permanently located in Chicago.

Miss Marlen Gray, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gray, has just been initiated into the club Esoterie at the University of Chicago, where clubs take the place of sororities.

Max Mauermann, Jr., a member of the national social fraternity, Kappa Sigma, has just been pledged to the International commerce fraternity, Delta Sigma Pi. Edward Mauermann, who is playing forward on University

Mrs. Anthony J. Peterson, to Russell Luther, Evanston. The ceremony took place in a small church in the desert near Phoenix, Arizona, and the young couple have left for Los Angeles, California, where they plan to remain for a year.

Sequoits One Of Three Teams Tied For League Leadership

ANTIOCH, LIB., BENSONVILLE IN LEAD FOR TITLE

Locals To Play Crucial Game With Leyden On Friday

LEADERS WIN NINE; LOSE TWO

By Agnes Blenfang

If the past is any indication of the future, probabilities are potent that the Northwest conference basketball race will result in Antioch, Libertyville, and Bensonville sharing the top run honors.

Crucial Games To Be Played Friday

The league will close Friday when Antioch will seek the win from Leyden; Libertyville from Gurnee; and Bensonville from Palatine. If these crews are successful in their attempts, it will mean a three-way tie for first honors. In order that Antioch come out on top of the heap in the final tilt of the season, Gurnee will have to nip Libertyville and Palatine, Bensonville. Each of the leaders has now won 9 games and lost 2. Last Friday night Antioch won from Barrington; Gurnee from Bensonville; Libertyville from Leyden; and Arlington Heights from Palatine.

Antioch-Barrington Tilt Slow

The game between Antioch and Barrington was rather slow, with no remarkable playing. At the end of the first half the score was tied at 14-14. Barrington came back in the second half determined to beat the Sequoits. At no time during the game were the locals leading by a comfortable margin, but nevertheless they copped the win by a 27-20 count.

Local Cagers' Last Appearance

Since it will be the last time the local cagers will be seen in action a race-breaking crowd is expected to witness the Antioch-Leyden game to be played here Friday night. This will be the first time that Coach Watson has brought a basketball team to the local floor since he severed connections with Antioch. The Sequoits copped the bacon from him and his championship outfit earlier in the season and so there is probably no other team they would rather beat than Antioch.

In order to have a chance at the title it is very necessary that the local cagers clinch this crucial game and local fans are anxious to get a last look at the Antioch team to see what prospects it has in the District tournament to be held in Waukegan next week. There will be special features between the halves.

screams, moans, and prayers. Dr. C. O. Smith, of Chicago, thus described what transpired during the interval from the time of the first crash until the carnage was over:

"I was dazed for a minute by what seemed to be a bump on my head," he said. "I remember that feeling in the confused impression of the grinding of brakes, the crash and then the moment when it was still."

"When my head cleared I realized I was wedged under a seat. Then came a rush of sound, cries, screams, prayers and moans. Blurred lights flashed in. They came from cars that were stopping along the road. "It was a frightful scene. A mixture of mangled bodies, fathers, and mothers looking for their children."

Use Acetylene Torches
Those who survived also tell of hearing the screams of a man imprisoned in a coach who asked to be shot in order to end his misery. In order to reach the bodies that had been pinned under the wreckage it was necessary for workers to use acetylene torches to burn away the barriers of twisted steel.

Shimmers was identified through the license number of his car. Ray Shaw, a Kenosha motorist, who had been driving behind Shimmers, is of the opinion that the automobile that caused the wreck carried 4 persons. When relief workers first reached the scene of the trouble some of the victims were screaming desperately, some were calmly trying to extricate themselves from the wreckage, while others walked about as if confused.

The wreck was one of the most serious in this region for years. Had it occurred farther up the line, many more lives would have been inevitable.

Pirates Win 23 Games; Lose Only 6

The Wilmot Pirate Basketball club will soon conclude its third season of play. The club has enjoyed another successful season, having won twenty-three games and lost only six games.

Among the teams which met defeat at the hands of the Pirates were The Western Printing team from Racine, The Community Five from North Chicago, Delavan, Elkhorn, Williams Bay, The Grant Furniture Team, leaders in the Kenosha city league and several others of prominence.

The personnel of the team has remained nearly the same since organization.

Eugene (Shubert) Frank, captain and forward, has an enviable scoring record. Norman (Lefty) Richter, forward, is also known for his exceptional basket shooting. Norman (Red) Richards, center, is one of the important defensive cogs of the team and also a very efficient scorer. George Richter, guard and a floor man of rare ability. Marlin Schurr, smart playing guard of great speed. Clarence (Stub) Loh, consistent guard playing his first year with the team. Lyle (Mac) McDougall, a forward with a great eye for the basket. Donald (Dewey) Herrick, the utility player of the squad, has performed admirably at all positions. Arthur Gegan, center and guard, is also a utility man of merit.

The team will enter the Tri-County tournament Kenosha, Racine and Walworth, which will open at Racine on March 12 and continue until ably lost, according to officials of the line who say that the train would probably have been going at a faster rate of speed.

Line Man Issues Statement.
A statement issued by the North Shore Line at noon Monday says "A complete investigation as to the cause of the accident at Kenosha shows these facts:

An automobile had halted at the east side of the tracks to permit the north-bound freight train to pass.

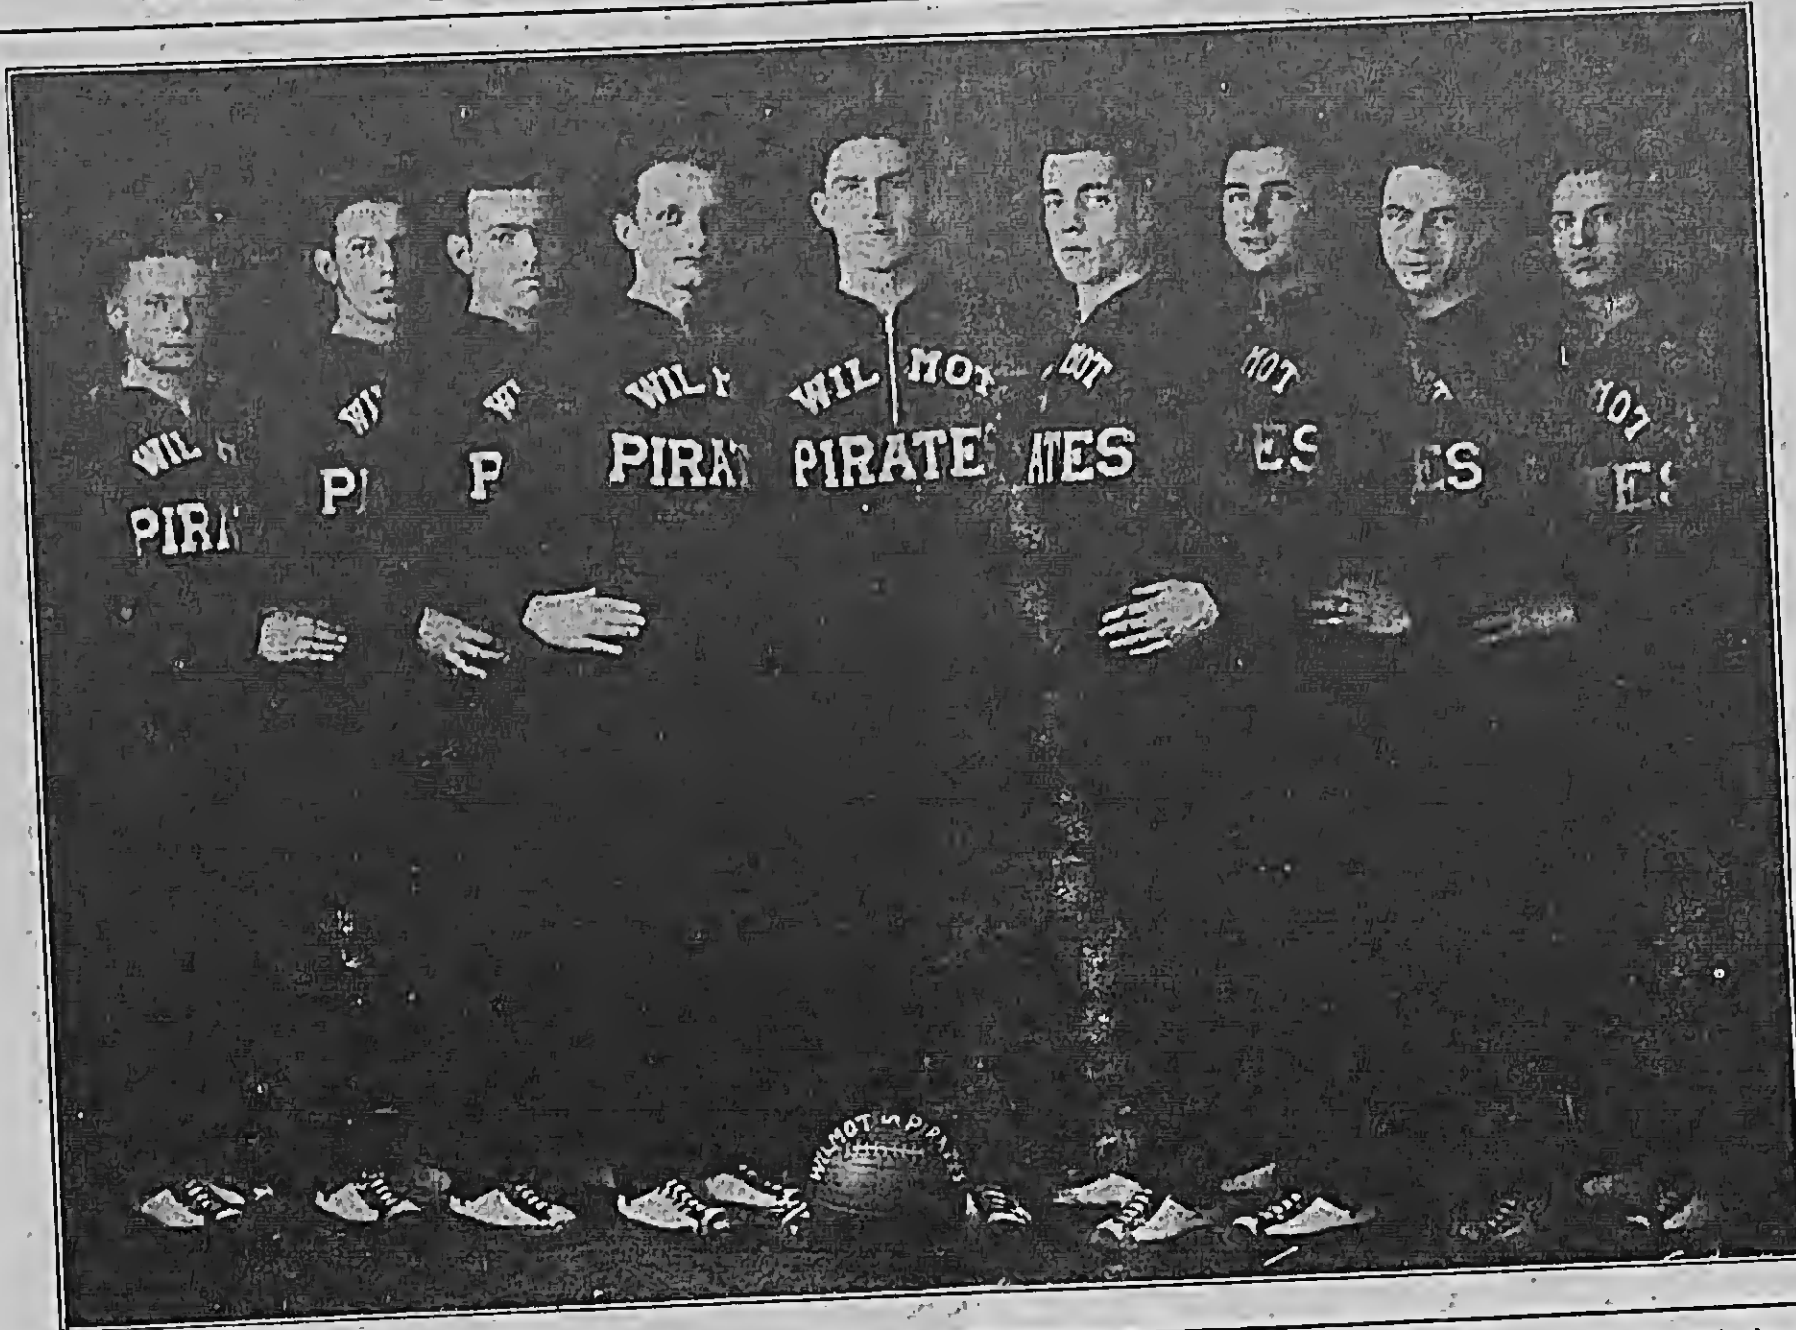

The automobile which caused the accident was west bound and traveling at between 50 and 60 miles an hour it circled the waiting automobile and dashed out on the tracks just as the freight train reached the crossing.

The motorman of the freight train saw the speeding automobile coming and also saw the passenger train headed south bound; he thought at first that the driver would attempt to stop but when he made no effort to do so the motorman set his brakes but could not bring his train to a stop in time to avoid the crash.

It is plain that the automobile driver was watching, only the freight train and attempting to beat it across the crossing and was not looking to the north from which direction the passenger train was coming as there is complete visibility at the crossing on both directions.

It is merely another case of reckless automobile driver, disregarding plainly marked railroad crossings and attempting to beat trains across crossings. In this deplorable instance he lost not only his own life but was instrumental in costing the lives of others and in causing extreme misery."

Wilmot Cagers Strong Contenders for Tri-County Title

March 15. Many fans will journey to Racine to watch their favorites in these contests.

LAKE VILLA HOME TALENT PLAY IS WELL ATTENDED

Several Cottages in West
View Addition Have Been Robbed

The home talent play, "Her Honor, the Mayor," was played to a full house both Thursday and Friday evenings. The Ladies' Aid, which sponsored the affair, netted a nice sum for their treasury, and feel grateful to the public for its patronage. Arlen Gulletto as the "cullud" cook, was well worth the price of admission and William Nelson, Dorothy Freund, Mrs. Paul Avery, Bess Lawlor, Norma Sehera, R. E. Alsbaugh, and N. Mohar interpreted their parts in a very realistic way, but not enough to make us want to change about as in the play. The music before the curtain and between acts was furnished by pupils of Miss Erna McLaughlin, who has a class in music here. Those taking part were Catherine Boehm, Jane Hall, and Helen Wilson.

Several cottages in West View addition have recently been entered by a burglar and in some cases, doors or windows were broken, but very little of value has been taken. An investigation is being made. The latest cottage to be broken into is that of W. Sheehan, who with his wife, is spending the winter in Chicago.

F. R. Cherwood was a Chicago visitor last Thursday.

Mrs. Alice Spring, who has been with her sister, Miss Mary Kerr, for a few months, has returned to her home in Millburn.

Thos. Peterson has been confined to his home for several weeks. Miss Margaret Mollitor of Round Lake spent last Thursday night with Dorothy Hooper and attended the play.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Hall and mother, Mrs. Sophia Hall of Chicago spent Thursday with Mrs. S. M. Shorwood, who is the elder Mrs. Hall's sister.

Little Jacqueline May, four months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Penn Haley of Lindenhurst Farm, was taken very ill early last week and taken to St. Theresa's hospital where an operation was performed for intestinal trouble. The mother is staying with her baby, who is doing as well as can be expected.

Mrs. N. I. Nelson, Lindenhurst Farm, was called to Elgin last week by the illness of her brother-in-law, who underwent an operation for appendicitis; he is recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Glessner and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Glessner, Maywood, came up Saturday and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Atwell.

Miss Dorothy Freund visited her sister in Waukegan Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Chapman, Beloit, Wis., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Seeger at Lindenhurst Farm.

Miss Elma Seeger, who teaches at Marion, Ind., spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Seeger.

The Sunday school will hold a bakery sale at Hadad's on Saturday afternoon, March 1, beginning at one o'clock. Bakery goods of all kinds will be for sale.

Mrs. Chas. La Meer and daughter, Mrs. Leslie Firehow, and little Eunice Elaine, Bristol, Wis., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dixon Wednesday.

The Ladies' Aid society will meet with Mrs. C. B. Hamlin at her home on Wednesday afternoon, March 5, for the regular monthly meeting. You are very welcome.

Mrs. Beatrice Shorwood is quite ill at her home this week.

Mrs. Lena Rohel, Oakbrook, Wis., is spending the week with her father, W. J. Sehera, and sister, Norma Sehera.

SALEM CLUB GIVES SURPRISE PARTY ON ELWIN MANNING

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Olson
Are Feted on Wedding Anniversary

The 500 club had a surprise party on Elwin Manning Tuesday evening in honor of his birthday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Byron Patrick, Mr. and Mrs. Leo McVicar, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hartnell, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Krahn, and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jorgensen, Bristol.

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert, Mr. and Mrs. Will Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hartnell and Richard and Elmer, Mr. and Mrs. George Belmer and Frances Belmer, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Huntton, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Olson gave Mr. and Mrs. Harry Olson a surprise party Saturday night; it being their fifteenth wedding anniversary.

Little Jane Hartnell was taken quite ill with bronchitis last Wednesday and pneumonia had developed in one lung Thursday. They had a nurse come from Milwaukee Saturday night to help care for her.

Mrs. Lerone Wilcox and son, Chester, spent Tuesday evening with Mrs. Olive Mutter.

The Priscillas met with Mrs. Mary Acker Thursday afternoon. They will serve a St. Patrick's dinner on March 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Johnson entertained Wednesday evening. Those present were: Mrs. George Patrick, Riggs, Mr. and Mrs. Leo McVicar, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schultz, Mr. and Mrs. Newton Merodith, and Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Sandia. The hostess served a delightful lunch at midnight. Mrs. Byron Patrick entertained at Vanishing Tea Wednesday. Those present were Mrs. George Patrick, Mrs. Mary Fleming, Mrs. Terping, Miss Sarah Patrick, Trevor, Mrs. Mary Hope, Mrs. Florence Bloss, Mrs. Ira Brown, Mrs. Arthur Bushing, Mrs. Frank Schmidt, and Mrs. Leo McVicar.

Rev. and Mrs. Stromberg attended the Ladies' Aid at Wilmet Thursday. Mrs. Herman Schonscheck, Mrs. George Thomas, and Mrs. Will Gallert drove to Burlington Wednesday to call on Mrs. Peter Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Merodith spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. Evan Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hartnell and Richard and Elmer Hartnell spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Belmer.

Mrs. Anna Hartnell and Clarence Cook spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Colby, Silver Lake.

Miss Mae Webster, Chicago, spent the weekend with John Evans and family.

ANTIOCH POST No. 748

Legion Auxiliary News

Antioch post of the American Legion reached the 100 per cent mark last week, the total membership being sixty-seven, which is two more than last year's total. Commander Moran compliments comrades who showed such splendid co-operation during the membership drive.

The result of the last membership call in the state will be reached on Friday when airplanes will carry all the last minute membership cards from all the districts in Illinois to Bloomington, the state headquarters. It is expected that the Eighth district, in which Lake county is included, will head the list. If this is true it will be much easier for the state to hold first place over New York and Pennsylvania in the nationwide drive.

The reason for many comrades being backward about becoming members of the American Legion is that they are pretty well fed up on the military angle of war and therefore do not care to become affiliated Shore View, with a friend from Chicago, visited at the John Mutz home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. A. McKay and Miss Ruth Thornton motored to Chicago Thursday to visit relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ernie, daughter, Arlene, Miss Rose Bltner, and Andrew Bltner motored to Chicago Saturday to visit friends. Miss Gertrude Copper accompanied them to visit her sisters, Mrs. Wm. Smith, Miss Pauline Copper, and brother, Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Wyant were Deerfield visitors Thursday and Friday.

Karl Oetting, Edward Blair, and John Bower, Chicago, spent Sunday with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oetting.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Hoff, Camp Lake, called on Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hanson Tuesday afternoon.

Harry Lubeno and Caesar Mlzen made a trip to Kenosha Thursday by truck to procure wagons for Mr. DeLancey.

with any organization which is still talking war, preparedness, legislation for the ex-service men, and political situations, but nevertheless, these comrades must realize that they are still needed to fight a different fight not only to make preparations for old age, but also to help their fellow comrades who are destitute.

Following the business session of the last regular meeting of the Antioch post, five candidates were initiated before a large assemblage.

Fourteen local members attended the regular monthly meeting of the Eighth district in North Chicago last Friday night. Music, good speaking, and good eats were some of the features of the meet. There were about two hundred and fifty legionnaires from all parts of the country in attendance.

Comrade Maplethorpe, who has the honor of holding the district appointment of athletic officer, made a request for the names of the athletic chairmen from all posts in the district at the recent county assemblage. The comrades believe the purpose of this request is to make preparations for the spring baseball training.

Commander Moran was appointed at the county meeting to assist in waiting upon the government officials the reaction of the district members toward the hospital.

Comrade Bonser, who is the Boy Scout chairman of the Antioch post, was appointed on the Boy Scout District committee at the district meeting. This group has an extensive program outlined for 1930.

Two comrades from Kenosha visited the Antioch post Thursday night. They explained the plans they had made relative to sponsoring a band concert in Antioch in the near future. This ought to be a real treat in that this band was granted second honors at the last legion convention.

Rev. Rex C. Shams, newly appointed pastor of St. Ignatius' church, and former of the La Salle, Illinois, post of the American Legion will transfer his membership to the local post.

Commander Moran is now asking the public for a few encouraging suggestions relative to this project of building a home for the legion.

Write a letter to the commander or any member of the post in which state whether you would like to see a memorial legion hall, a residential legion home, a community hall, a community center with hall or combination hall, fire station, or literary and village council chambers erected in Antioch. A big contest relative to this project will be put on by the Antioch post in the near future.

"ASTONISHING WERE RESULTS FROM KONJOLA!"

Man Had About Given Up Hope Of Ever Being Any Better; All Medicines Tried Had Failed

MR. S. T. SMITH

He guided by the experiences of others—that's a mighty good plan for all who suffer. Read what Mr. S. T. Smith, of Petersburg, Ill., near Springfield, says about Konjola. "For a year and a half I was in misery, and to add to my misery not a medicine I tried did the least bit of good. My stomach, liver and bowels were all out of order. I lost weight and strength. I had bilious attacks, dizzy spells and sickening headaches. My stomach bloated with gas after every meal.

"The man who told me about Konjola insisted that I try it. He had such faith in this new medicine that I began the treatment. To my astonishment, relief came with the very first bottle. In all I took five bottles and that was enough to solve all my health problems. I am feeling better than in years, and I owe all this to Konjola."

Konjola is sold in Antioch at S. H. Reeves' drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

What Makes a Good Business Town?

A GOOD business town is created by the COMPLETE CO-OPERATION OF EVERY CITIZEN in supporting the local business, professional and industrial institutions and in furthering the development of all community activities.

WHATEVER IS GOOD FOR BUSINESS IS ALSO GOOD FOR THE COMMUNITY, FOR AS BUSINESS PROFITS SO THE COMMUNITY PROSPERS. It is, therefore, of interest to ALL OF US that OURS should be a GOOD BUSINESS TOWN.

In judging the progress we are making as a business town let us see if we fulfill the following standards:

1. The citizens spend their money at home.
2. The number of business institutions is increasing.
3. There is an active general commercial organization such as a Chamber of Commerce with a high percentage of eligible concerns as members.
4. Business rentals are as low as in competing towns and the premises well kept.
5. The amount of bank deposits and savings deposits increase faster than population growth, and banking interests provide for local borrowers first.
6. A higher than normal increase in population.
7. An increasing railroad business, postal receipts, building construction and real estate transfers.
8. An increasing amount of insurance issued and held.
9. An honest civic administration and fair taxes.
10. Good streets and highways; utility services.
11. Efficient Fire and Police protection.
12. A church-going community—honest and thrifty.

Do we meet the standards in this community? In order to be judged a GOOD BUSINESS TOWN WE MUST.

Folks, it's good business for all of us to strive to make a Good Business Town of.

Don't let SORE THROAT get the best of you...

FIVE minutes after you rub on Musterole your throat should begin to feel less sore. Continue the treatment once every hour for five hours and you will be astonished at the relief. Working like the trained hands of a masseur, this famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses. Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

WHEN CHILDREN FRET

It isn't right for the little tots to fret and they wouldn't if they felt right. Constipation, headache, worms, feverishness, bad breath, any of these will make a child fret. They need the pleasant remedy—MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS. They regulate the bowels, break up colds, relieve feverishness, teething disorders and stomach troubles.

Used by Mothers for over 50 years. All drug stores sell Mother Gray's Sweet Powders. Ask today. Trade Package Free. THE MOTHER GRAY CO., Le Roy, N. Y.

"Northern Lights" The aurora borealis is a luminous phenomenon seen usually at night in the northern latitudes. It consists for the most part of long, slender beams of light of various colors, which form an arc in the heavens. Scientists believe that the aurora borealis is the result of electrical discharge through the upper regions of the atmosphere, though under conditions not yet entirely understood.

There was a creakle of pistol fire in front of us, and a knot of figures swayed into view, distorted, indistinct. The deluge seemed to her as a frenzied lens to play tricks with normal vision; and possibly that was why comparatively few were shot. Twice I had men fall over the barrel of my pistol, and both times I missed—and I am rather better than a good shot. But I had no time for philosophizing.

Toutou and I went for Nikka. He was bleeding from a cut in the arm, and all his men were engaged. Hugh, with King and Watty, was developing an encircling movement on the opposite end of the line. I started to go to Nikka's aid, but a man sprang at me from nowhere, and I was obliged to dodge him until I had a chance to shoot. I did not miss that time. When I looked again, Nikka and Toutou were crouching among other, and I was at grips with Kara.

At first I thought the Levantine was scheming to throw the girl, but as I drew near I perceived that he had eluded with her in mortal terror of her knife. She held his own powerless by her grasp of his wrist. A mocking light gleamed in her eyes, and she shook back her loose hair and leered at him in the Tziguine dialect. With one pudgy hand he strove to ward off her blade, but he could not control her little muscles. She tore her wrist free, the steel drove home through his sudden frock coat and he collapsed with a squeal.

Kara pulled out her knife as casually as though it had been a familiar occurrence, and turned to watch Nikka's fight with Toutou. Nikka from the corner of his eye saw the two of us, plainly waiting a chance to help him, and he leaped clear of the circle long enough to snap:

"Let be! I finish this alone!"

I couldn't have helped him. In any case, for as redoubtable a person as Tokaji, himself, attacked me at that moment, Kara did not even notice my danger. She also ignored the man she called father. Her whole attention was concentrated upon Nikka. I fired once at the gypsy chief, and missed. That was the last cartridge in the magazine, and I attempted to lose him in the rain. But he refused to be lost, and I was making up my mind to take his knife in my wounded arm and batter his head with my pistol butt, when Toutou loomed in the mist and brought down his trusty crowbar on Tokaji's knife-wrist. The gypsy yelped like a dog, and the knife clattered on the ground. Watty produced some rope from a pocket and deftly twisted the man's arms behind him. Tokaji yelped again.

"Easy," I said. "The fellow's wrist is broken."

"I'm tying 'im above the elbows, Mister Jack, sir," answered Watty. "But if it did 'im a bit, I wouldn't worry, sir. 'Im no biter, sir, 'e was one of the soundest that bashed me 'ead."

My one thought was of Nikka, and I sought him over the rain-battered area of the court. The fighting had drifted away toward the sea wall. There seemed to be nobody near me. I listened hard, and in a lull of the storm my ears detected the click of blades. I stumbled toward it, and nearly fell on top of Kara, crouching as I had left her, eyes glued on the two men who circled tirelessly, steel-upped arms crooked before them.

Toutou had a huge advantage in reach, but Nikka had the benefit of little agility, a wrist of iron—the result of years of bowing; a hawk's eyes; and all the tricks of the blade that the people of his race have amassed in centuries of bloody strife. Four times, while I watched, Toutou endeavored to force down Nikka's knife by the sheer strength of his gorilla-like arm, and each time Nikka disengaged and refused to give the opportunity his adversary needed. Twice Nikka tried a certain trick, a combination of lightning thrusts and clever footwork. But the Frenchman parried it each time, and reinforced so quickly as to drive Nikka out of reach.

Neither of them said anything. Toutou spat and whined in his throat, enviously. Nikka panted from exertion. Both of them dripped with sweat, notwithstanding the rain. There was something of an epic quality about their struggle, and I discovered myself taking the same almost impersonal interest in it that Kara demonstrated by all the principles of normal right behavior. I should have ignored Nikka's command to let him fight it out alone, and rushed in at the first opening to kill a monster who did not deserve and had no appreciation of my help. But I could not. I was chained by an emotion I could not fathom.

And yet I was absorbed in Nikka's success. My heart leaped in my throat when I saw that he was trying for the third time the trick which had twice failed. His knife went up in the same way, he shifted posture as he had in his other tries, and Toutou mechanically side-stepped as experience had told him was safe and aimed a stab which should have cut Nikka's throat. But Nikka was not there. He had varied the trick. Stooping, his knife had fallen, then, sliced upward—and Toutou staggered; a look of blind surprise on his face, tipped open from belly to chest.

"Pr-sas-s-s-sst!" he hissed, and fell forward.

Kara hurled herself into Nikka's arms. "You are the greatest knife-fighter of the Tziguines!" she cried triumphantly. "You are a king! You are my man! See, while you conquered your enemy, I too, subdued the rat who tried to put his knife in your back."

And she led Nikka to the body of Ilimi, which, I regret to say, she kicked with her brown toes. Nikka absently leaped over to wipe his knife on the Levantine's coat-tails, but Kara intervened.

"No, no," she exclaimed. "Here is my half! Wipe it on my hair, beloved of my heart. Let me suck it clean with my lips! So we shall have strong sons."

Nikka looked sufficiently annoyed to show that he had some instincts of civilization remaining.

"Peace," he ordered roggly. "Be quiet, girl!"

She cowered before him, and he recognized me.

"Oh, hullo, Jack! Where's Hugh?" Hugh loomed up through the rain as he spoke.

"That you, Nikka? We think we've got Tokaji's people rounded up, but we need you to talk to them. Has Toutou—"

"He's there."

Nikka pointed his knife to the heap of drab garments that had been the French "killer."

"Good for you!" exclaimed Hugh. "I'm glad he didn't get off. When you think of Uncle James and that girl we saw—and I suppose others! What a heist!"

We splashed after him, Kara following Nikka like a dog. Wasso Mikall, his surviving young men, King and Watkins were guarding thirteen shivering gypsies in the lee of the bachelor's quarters. In reply to questions, Tokaji told Nikka—and Kara, smugly throwing in her lot with us, corroborated him—that there had been fifteen of their band on the premises. A search of the courtyard disclosed two of them dead, together with one of Wasso Mikall's men. We bound the arms of the prisoners, most of them suffering from bullet wounds or stabs, and marched them over to the house of the married.

The one lantern was still flickering when we entered, and Betty rose to greet us.

"Thank God!" she said soberly as her eyes fastened on us all. "What did you do with Mrs. Illiger?"

"Isn't she here?" asked Hugh.

"No. I don't know just when she left. There was a lot of firing, and I looked to where she had been sitting by her husband, and she was gone."

Nikka and I sped back into the courtyard. We peered our way over the occasional bodies to the street door. It was ajar.

"I locked it myself!" cried Nikka. "Old Wasso Mikall picked it without damaging the spring. I took time when we entered to fasten it again."

I was feeling very weak. My shoulder throbbled. Nausea assailed me in recurrent waves. But I clutched the gate post, and peered into the street. Nobody was in sight.

"She escaped," said Nikka. "Too bad! We might have—" What's the matter, Jack?"

He caught me as my knees bent under me. I felt the rain on my eyelids, and then everything was blotted out.

When I opened my eyes Watkins was bending over me.

"Ah, there, Mister Jack," he said. "Give a drink of this. Thank you, sir. And as I struggled to a sitting position: 'No need of water, sir. All's well. And you 'ad a bit of a knock, if I may say so, sir.'"

"It seems as though you and I were the Jomhs, Watty," I answered. "This is the first time I've passed out cold."

"Quite right, sir. The same thought was in my own 'ead. If Mrs. Prouty and 'Awkins—the butcher, sir—and the others in the servants' all could 'ave seen me last night, they would 'ave been startled, sir. I do assure you they would. There was that Russian young lady, now. I give you my word, sir, she cursed like a man, and 'er brother was no better when 'e came from 'is faint. A fair rowdy lot of people we 'ad on our 'ands—including the young person in whom Mister Nikka happens to be interested, as the saying goes, sir."

"You said last night, I believe," I interrupted.

"Yes, sir. It's close to noon, Mister Jack. But 'ard bless you, sir, there's been no rest. We 'ad a lurching butler-taker's job, let alone trying up and mauling the prisoners."

"What have we done with the bodies?"

"In the garden, sir. The prisoners did the work—except the Russian persons, sir. 'E couldn't account of 'is leg, and she, being a lady, so to speak, was 'excused."

"Well, I'm going to get up," I announced. "My shoulder feels better."

"If you wish, sir. My instructions were to get you anything you required, but with submission, sir, might I suggest you sleep a little longer? There's nothing—eh, er, er, Mister Nikka?"

Nikka strolled in from the courtyard, with Kara trailing him.

"Hullo, Jack!" he greeted me. "Tough luck you had to stop a bullet. We're all more or less cut up, but you had the worst of it, although my uncle, who is a practical surgeon in a crisis way, claims the bullet missed the bone."

"So Watkins told me. Any news?" The police—

"No, the storm covered the shooting. Hugh has been to Fern with Betty in the Charley this morning, and they heard no comments. One of Wasso Mikall's men stopped in at the corner coffee shop, and made sure there was no local gossip. The only danger, I think, is from Mrs. Illiger. We've got to risk that."

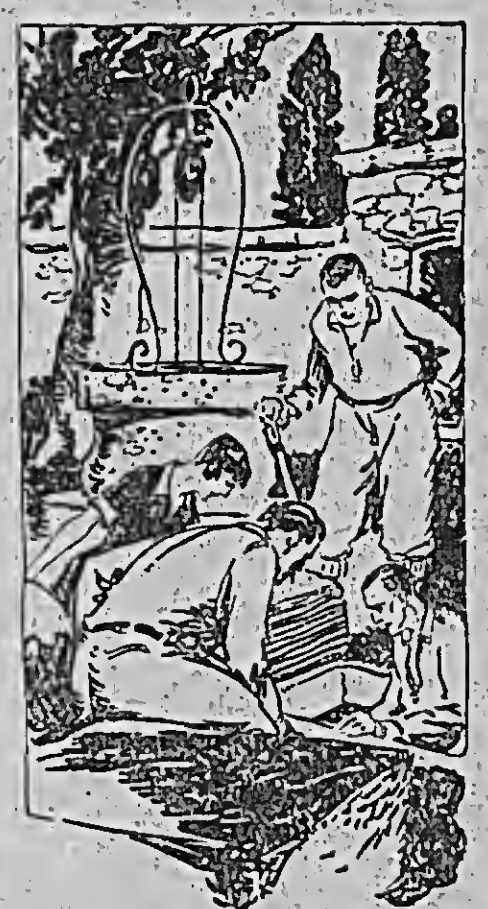

"Aren't you all worn out?" "No. Too much excitement, I expect. We're just going to eat. Then Betty insists on going after the treasure again."

Kara slung up to him, with a venomous glance at me, and ejaculated a remark so vile, Nikka laughed, and pushed her behind him. She headed him like a dog that is contempt with a rebuke, so long as notice is taken by its master.

"She said," Nikka translated, "that I ought not to talk with you any longer. She wants me to pay attention to her."

"Humph!" I growled, returning Kara's look with interest. "Help me up, will you? Thanks! What are you going to do with her?"

"Tame her, I expect," he answered cheerfully. "I've begun by taking her knife away from her. She wanted to stick Betty because I talked more than five minutes to her about you."

"A sweet job! She'll end by sticking you."

"Perhaps," agreed Nikka equably. "Come and get some breakfast. A cup of coffee will help you to take a more charitable view of a wild little gypsy girl."

Hugh, Betty, and Vernon King welcomed us as we entered the atrium, where a low table of packing boxes had been rigged. Wasso Mikall and his men were either guarding the prisoners or else keeping watch on the street entrance. Kara stowed at all of us, but squatted determinedly behind Nikka.

We talked very little. The one idea in the mind of each of us was to get at the red stone, which we could see from where we sat, and we looked down our food as rapidly as possible. I forgot completely my injured shoulder. Watkins actually hurried himself in passing the eggs. Betty and Hugh crumbled a few bits of toast, and struggled over their coffee. Vernon King alone ate placidly, with the zest of a man who feels he has done a good job well. At last, Betty could stand it no longer, and she sprang up with an imitation of Kara's scowl so faithful that everybody, except Kara, laughed.

"Daddy, you've had time for two breakfasts," she decreed. "That's enough. Besides, I won't have you getting fat in your old age. Come! Everybody! We've got our chance, our chance that we began to think was gone agglomerating. The treasure of the Bucoleon is at our feet—under our feet, I mean. Up with the red stone!"

"Up she goes!" assented Hugh. Crowbars, chisels, mallets, picks and shovels appeared, and Hugh paced the distance from the Fountain of the Lion. His calculations indicated the stone that I had roughly estimated on our first visit to the garden. We all watched him with muddy beaming hearts. It was really true! We were going to lay bare the secret covered by the red stone, to grasp the prize that the Emperor Andronicus had concealed seven centuries before, the prize that generation after generation of men had striven for in vain.

The thought exhilarated us, and when Hugh stepped aside and seized a chisel and mallet we all set to with superhuman energy. I was unable to do much, but I experienced a sharp pleasure in the fierce act of holding with my one hand the head of a chisel upon which one of the others rained blows with a mallet. We could not take time for conversation. We worked. Even Vernon King, who had millions at his command, succumbed to the lure of the red stone's secret, and panted as he chipped the rotten mortar from the interstices between the red stone and those surrounding it.

Working at such a pace with so many willing hands, it was only a matter of a few minutes before the stone was detached from its neighbors, and Nikka thrust the tip of a crowbar under its edge. Followed then a struggle of some duration, but in the end it sagged up and was overturned. Below it was a second stone of equal dimensions, granite, unmarred, although the dust of ages had sifted into the cracks around it. This yielded to our efforts much sooner than had the capstone, and Hugh, kneeling amongst the debris, peered down into a yawning hole in the pavement.

"Careful!" warned King. "A compartment which has been sealed for centuries will be full of carbonic-acid gas."

Hugh sniffed.

"It's as damp as—as—that beastly drain," he said. "But it smells reasonably sweet."

We poked our torches into the hole. All they showed was a steep flight of stairs descending straight into blackness.

"Most extraordinary!" muttered Vernon King. "Byzantine masonry, beyond a doubt. Observe the squaring of the blocks, and the composition of the mortar. This is no such slovenly work as Turkish masons do. The master-builders of old had these stones."

"It's safe, what are we waiting for?" I harked.

Our nerves were on edge.

"Oh, take your time," said Hugh impatiently, and he lowered himself, feet first.

The others followed him, one by one, and I brought up the rear, ashamed of myself for the temper I had exhibited. The pitch of the stairs was so sharp that we had to bend only a little in passing under the rim of the opening. They were barely wide enough for one man, and I counted thirty of them before they terminated in a passage that led off at right angles, with an appreciable downward slope.

"Hold up!" Hugh called back to us a moment later. "Here's an opening into another passage. There's a step down. Why, this is the draft again!"

We joined him, incredulous, only to be convinced at once that he was right. The passage dejected on the sewer some distance inland from the grating of the dungeon.

"My G-d!" growled Hugh. "And we've gone through everything for this! Was there ever such a sell!"

The vaulted roof echoed his words. The "drip-drip" of slime and fungi was a melancholy punctuation for them. But the reaction loosened our taut nerves. The one thought of all of us was to comfort Hugh.

"There may be some explanation," said Nikka.

"Perhaps we overlooked something," I volunteered.

"It is a most unusual archeological discovery," offered King.

"There is an explanation," cried Betty. "We have overlooked something. I know it. There must be."

"It's no go," answered Hugh despondently. "I've brought you on a wild-goose chase."

We all looked rather white and wan in the cold light of the electric torches. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

New York Leads All in Orgy of Wasting

In America, waste is an old habit of long standing and not wholly dishonorable descent. It is a legacy of the pioneers, a part of the old American tradition; for with a wilderness to subdue and the wealth of a continent at their doorsteps, the first settlers trampled themselves little over what they wasted. There was plenty more, whereas speed in producing food or clothes or shelter was a matter of life and death. So the tradition became established; and the descendants of the earliest fathers have habitually agreed with the latest immigrants in at least this one American tradition: to get things quickly, to build hastily, to tear down when it is convenient, and to use up at breakneck speed the gifts that the generous gods have lavishly provided.

And as all things American are on their grandest scale in New York, it is there that we must look for an orgy of waste that would have appalled Imperial Rome. If the Yankee metropolis is not the most American of cities, either in its culture or its population, it is at least the most observed, both by foreigners and by other cities of the land. It occupies more land, builds higher buildings, handles more business, receives more visitors and attention, lives at a quicker tempo than any other city in America—which means that it wastes on a more lavish and stupendous scale than any other city in the world. —John Dakeless in the Forum.

Wealth From "Scrap"

By the system of reclamation of the scrap pile now being generally followed by nearly all the railroad companies, bright new tin minkets, cups and other articles are being manufactured from old metal roofing, empty powder and carbide containers and other junk salvaged. Old broom handles are made into shafts for signal lights, old canyons is transformed into curtains for the locomotive cabs and cupboards, steam-pipe coverings, and aprons. Thrift practices such as these save the carriers hundreds of thousands of dollars annually.

After 28 Years' Practice Describes Iral Treatment which Keeps People

"AFTER over 28 years of the study of and practice of medicine, during which time I have treated and supervised the treatment of almost every variety of human illness," writes Dr. Martin J. Dobson of Los Angeles, "I believe I have discovered the greatest blessing that has been bestowed upon the human family. Statistics show that of all classes of persons, physicians and nurses live to a ripe old age than any other class of people. I believe this is no doubt due to the fact that they know more about the importance of daily elimination.

Dr. Dobson's Discovery
"The remedy I am speaking of is colorless, tasteless, harmless to the most delicate alimentary tract, from infancy to old age. It is non-habit-forming, and it is essential to the smooth running efficiency of the human body, which needs lubrication just like any other machine."

"Most human ailments can be traced to the alimentary tract for either the main or the contributing cause, and most of these disorders can be prevented or cured through proper cleansing and regulating by the administration of Nujol as per instructions on the bottle and wrap-

PRIBILOF ISLANDS

Seals on One of the Pribilof Islands.

(Edited by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)
AMERICA'S farthest northwest and Asia's farthest northeast mark the icy region where airplanes of the United States and Soviet Russia have been seeking and hunting. The region was discovered while trying to carry aid by a marooned ship. The region which search was made embraces a portion of the Arctic to the north, and Bering sea to the south.

While whaling ships pass through these waters at intervals, much of the region is far from being a frequented one. Less than 200 years ago Bering strait had not been crossed by a boat with a civilized navigator in command, but since then, whalers, Arctic explorers, and adventurers have passed through and across the strait.

About twenty years after the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock, two Russian expeditions, sailed along the western bank of Bering strait without seeing the American side. Later, a trading station was established on the Russian bank, but it was nearly a century later that Alaska was explored from the west.

Timors were current at the Russian trading station that there was an island in the strait, hidden by the fog that envelopes the region, and that America lay to the east. The "island" proved to be two islands now known as Diomedes. Today one of the Diomedes belongs to Russia, the other to the United States; for the international boundary line runs between them. They are inhabited by Eskimos who make their living chiefly as "go between" for American and Russian traders.

Named for Vitus Bering.
Bering strait and Bering sea take their names from Vitus Bering, a Danish navigator who enlisted in the Russian navy in 1703. Peter the Great ordered him to the east coast of Siberia in 1725. He went overland to Oshkotsk and then to Kamchatka, where he built a ship for his explorations. He sailed up the Bering sea coast but America was hidden in the fog. On a subsequent voyage, in 1741, he saw the American continent for the first time. On his way back to Siberia, Bering's ship was wrecked on what is now known as Bering Island in the Commander group. Sailors who reached the mainland carried the story of the fur trade possibilities in Alaska and soon Russian trappers and traders moved to the new continent.

If the international boundary line continued north and south as it does through the strait, half of the Aleutians would belong to Russia. But at the south end of the strait it veers southward, missing the western end of the Aleutian chain by about 150 miles.

The Commander Islands form the only group on the Russian side of the line while the United States acquired the St. Lawrence, St. Matthew, Nunivak and the Pribilof Islands when Seward paid Russia $7,000,000 for the famous "Seward Ice Box," as Alaska was called by the critics of the purchase.

Perhaps the most important and best known of the American islands are the Pribilofs, where the United States bureau of fisheries maintains a sealing station and fox ranch. The Pribilofs consist of 5 islands, lying in the Bering sea, about 200 miles north of the Aleutian chain. St. Paul and St. George islands, the largest and only ones of the group that are inhabited, are each slightly more than 30 square miles in area. The other three are merely jutting rocks with a combined area no larger than a fair-sized eastern farm.

Seals on the Pribilofs.

The islands are bleak and desolate. Their barren, volcanic peaks and rocky shores are hostile to vegetation. In the winter they are covered with ice and snow, and whipped by the frigid Arctic gales, while during the summer months, that fog that envelops the whole area is so dense that the sun's rays rarely touch the earth. As a result the climate is uncomfortable, cold and damp. Toward autumn the wind clears the atmosphere and here and there grass and mosses make the best of the short fogless and iceless season. Only a few years ago, the inhabitants of the islands were entirely isolated from the rest of the world for six months of the year, but the radio has changed that condition.

When Pribilof, the Russian navigator, whose name the islands bear, landed there in 1780, after three years' search for the breeding grounds of the seals that frequented the north Pacific and Bering seas waters, he found no human life, but millions of seals. He was followed by Russians and later by natives from the Aleutian Islands. Russians and a few Americans make up the present population, most of whom are connected with the government sealing and fox raising industries.

While seals are sometimes known as sea bears, their names peculiarly follow those of cattle and dogs, and even human beings. The adult male is called a "bull" and the female, a "cow." Instead of referring either to bears or cattle by calling the baby seals "cubs" or "calves," they call them "pups." The young males fare better by annexing a name of human origin—bachelors.

The more rocky the shore, the more the seals like it during the breeding seasons, for the harems (seal families) forsake the few smooth spots on the islands and establish their rookeries (breeding places) among the broken rocks along the shore, or on the sides of rocky hills. From the rim the rookeries appear to the eye as collections of black splashes continually moving, while to the ear comes a blend of loud grunts and barks. Each of these splashes represents a harem of 50 or 60 cows and, perhaps, twice as many pups, which are protected by a bull. The bachelors are not allowed to come near the harems but occupy "hauling grounds," on smooth rocks or sandy beaches, outside the family circles. Sometimes a bachelor fights a harem and if successful in his fight with the bull, he takes away a cow or two.

As cold weather approaches, the cows and newborn pups leave the islands and go south, followed shortly afterward by the bulls. They never touch land until their return to the Pribilofs in the spring. The two to three-month-old pups, who have been subsisting on milk and hardly know how to "navigate," are forced to make their own way without assistance from the rest of the family. As a result, it is estimated that 50 per cent of them die before the next season.

How the Herds Are Protected.

The seal herds of the Pribilofs decreased from between 2,500,000 and 4,000,000 when the islands were taken over by the United States in 1868, to 150,000 in 1911. Although the government placed restrictions on killing them on the islands, the loss was largely due to the killing of cows while they swam about in the water in the summer, perhaps seeking squid and fish at the nearest food source, a hundred miles south, or during the winter while in the ice. The death of a cow in the winter means the loss of a pup to be born the following summer, while a similar killing in the summer would perhaps be more disastrous, for the new-born pup left at the rookery would die of starvation and an unborn pup would also be lost. Laws and treaties now protect seals while at sea.

Scientific propagation is showing its favorable effect upon the herds annually. Only surplus males are killed for their pelts. The best furs are taken from seals under five years old. Those that are to be killed are separated from the herd, struck on the head with a large club, and then struck through the heart with a knife. After the killing an expert skinner can remove the pelt of a seal in two or three minutes.

The government also successfully maintains and propagates blue and white foxes on the Pribilofs, which add to the revenue already received from the sealing industry. Nearly 1,000 pelts are shipped to this country annually. Unlike the fox farms on the Aleutian Islands where the little animals are inclosed in chicken-wire cages, the Pribilof packs are allowed to run wild. They are the most successful packs in the world.

Most of the pelts of both the seals and foxes are auctioned off in the St. Louis fur market.

Bering sea is 33 times larger than Lake Michigan. The Gulf of Mexico could be swallowed up in its area. If the Bering sea were placed on a map of the United States with its northernmost point at Chicago, the Aleutian Islands, which form its southern boundary, would dot the northern shore of the Gulf of Mexico.

Drugs Excite the Kidneys, Drink Water

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

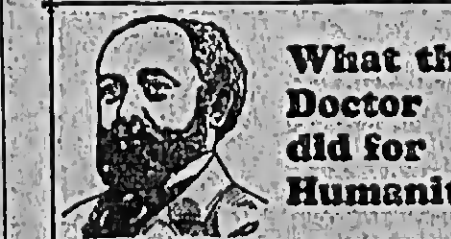

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble because we often eat too much rich food. Our blood is filled with acids which the kidneys strive to filter out; they weaken from overwork, become sluggish, the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or if you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, begin drinking lots of good water and get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot fail, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

In love, you are never allowed to permit your feelings to relax. It is such a tyrannical taskmaster.

What this Doctor did for Humanity

As a young man the late Dr. R. V. Pierce, practiced medicine in Pennsylvania and was known far and near for his great success in alleviating disease. Finally he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and put up in ready-to-use form, his GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY, the well known tonic for the blood. This strength builder is made from a formula which Dr. Pierce found most effective when in private practice. It aids digestion, acts as a tonic and enriches the blood—clears away pimples and annoying eruptions and tends to keep the complexion fresh and clear. All druggists. Tablets or Liquid.
